The importance of the policy-analysis in relation to the political/administrative work experience

v/ Rene Clausen, Langeland Kommune
Political/administrative work experience

- It is not only the policy-analysis, which has importance to the political/administrative work, but the competence development process has also great importance.
Political/administrative work experience

• Through the process, the relations between the health professionals and the educational-social-professionals were in focus

• The value ”Community” (from the competence development process) is also used in the work with health policies and strategies

Importance of the policy-analysis in relation to the political/administrative work experience
Political/administrative work experience

- Social inclusion is used as a policy-concept
- Social inclusion is link to the process of coorporation across sectors and professions

Importance of the policy-analysis in relation to the political/administrative work experience
Recommendations

- Shared language and shared understanding
- Specification of values and health education process
- Policy, target and initiative formulation
- Implementation strategies
- Evaluation and documentation
- Policy tools and management
- Cross-sector and cross-professional synergi effects

Importance of the policy-analysis in relation to the political/administrative work experience
Recommendations

Shared language and shared understanding
- Makes communication easier and prevents unrealistic expectations

Specification of values and the health education approach
- Across policy areas

Importance of the policy-analysis in relation to the political/administrative work experience
Competence development

• Social inclusion is a policy-concept

• Interaction between political intentions and pedagogical/educational practise

• Social inclusion has one overall target: to create equal opportunities for everybody

• Even though we see equal opportunities we still do not see equal participation in health issues
Competence development

- Social inclusion is linked to social exclusion
- Social inclusion is all about participation in different types of social systems (i.e. day care, school,..)
- Social exclusion is all about lack of participation
Competence development

A social Including Practise is:

• a practise, which contributes to support exposed individuals or groups to become active and equal participants in social communities
Competence development

Inclusion or normalization

Inclusion requires that initiatives are made so that the individual wishes to participate in the practise of social communities

Otherwise it is normalization

Importance of the policy-analysis in relation to the political/administrative work experience
Importance of the policy-analysis in relation to the political/administrative work experience
Cross-sectoral coorporation

Life conditions:
- Education
- Housing
- Work Environment
- Unemployment
- Health Care Services
- Recreative Environment

Life Style:
- Social relations
- Physical activity
- Alcohol
- Smoking
- Nutrition
- Sexual health
- Drugs

Background
Goals
Responsibilities
Social Inclusion

Importance of the policy-analysis in relation to the political/administrative work experience
Cross-sectoral coorporation in Day care practise

Life conditions:
- Education
- Housing
- Work Environment
- Unemployment
- Health Care Services
- Recreative Environment

Life Style:
- Social relations
- Physical activity
- Alcohol
- Smoking
- Nutrition
- Sexual health
- Drugs

Background
Goals
Responsibilities
Social Inclusion

Importance of the policy-analysis in relation to the political/administrative work experience